Effect of Transportation on the Decline of City Commercial Center in Competition with Large Sub Urban Shopping Center

Kazuaki Nakai

n
E-mail: hokao@cc.saga-u.ac.jp

Abstract. The influence of large sub urban shopping cen n e A a c s e e in Saga city in Japan where the city center has evidenRece ntly, th e influence of large sub u rban shopping center tow ard the dec lpe d person.

It is necessary, therefore, to clarify the factors that influence the city decline so that the continuation of downtown decline may be controll included variabl paid parking in the city center. It was also found that for the people who shop with frequency less than once a week, the sub-urban shopping ce( )Tj10.5 0 0 10.5059c2 89.04079 761.360714eri